LibertyPay Charity: credit and debit card processing specially designed for charities and not-for-profit organisations

Here's something you may not know about us: we have a long history of working with charities and not-for-profit organisations. So when it comes to taking card payments, we like to think that we know a thing or two about how best to help you to accept payments and donations face-to-face, online and over the telephone.

Accepting cards can seem daunting, after all, it's a serious business. Since 2014, more payments and donations have been taken on card than by any other method, and we don't want you, or the work you do, to miss out.

Equally, we don't believe that paying too much for an inflexible card processing service that isn't tailored to your sector is the best way to help you help others in need.

So, whether you'd like to boost your sales or donations by utilising one of our card payment products for the very first time, or whether you'd just like to find out what's new in the world of payment processing, we're always here to talk things through.

Why not have a chat with us and tell us what's important to you?

Our experience in the not-for-profit sector means that we already have the expertise to advise and explain all about the latest card payment products. We believe that the more we know about your organisation, the better we'll work together to develop a tailored payment solution, and that's our promise.

Furthermore, should your organisation already be accepting cards, we can put together a tailor-made pricing proposal which we hope will demonstrate a cost-saving to the charity; every penny counts!
